Authorization for the article: In consideration of the Copyright Law of the People's Republic of China and relevant regulations and the creative contribution to the submitted material made by editors from the Chinese Medical Association (CMA) journals before publication, the author or authors agree to transfer their copyrights or relevant property rights to the CMA on the date of signing this transfer agreement if the article has been accepted for publication by CMA journals. The CMA has the rights for, but not limited to compilation, publication, reproduction, interpretation, E-publication, and worldwide transmission of the article in whole or in part, while permitting to be included in, searched and used by retrieval systems such as Internet or databases in China and abroad, or to be published and used in other languages via different media existing or arising later in the way that is not against the existing law of the People's Republic of China or the law issued afterwards. The CMA will make a full payment including copyright transfer fee to the author or authors after the article is published. The author or authors confirm that: (1) this writing is an original work (mark with a tick in the pane) <input type="checkbox"/> ; a translation <input type="checkbox"/> ; a review article <input type="checkbox"/> . The article is free from intellectual property dispute, not a duplicate submission nor confidential in any form; it has not been published in the language which CMA journals use. (2) The author or authors will not publish the article worldwide in any form or any media in the language which CMA journals use or permit a third party to use it without the permission from the CMA. The CMA agrees that the author or authors have non-exclusive rights to use the article, but they have to get permission from the CMA before their exercise. However, using the format of CMA journals by which this article is published is forbidden. The CMA or the author or authors should bear the corresponding responsibilities if either of them infringes this agreement in accordance to the Copyright Law of the People's Republic of China . For the other rights of the author or authors, they should be put forward by the author or authors and negotiated by the two sides. This authorization takes effect from the date of the article's publication, and the period of validity should be as long as the copyright protection period of this article. If the article is a work creation, please make a note and sign the agreement by the institution.
